Using The Plugin.

Using the plugin is really easy.

Just go to to your WordPress admin area and in the left sidebar (“Easy Trading Signals”), click “Add New”.

Then enter your trading signal....

Pair / Instrument:	<input type="text" value="EURUSD"/>
	<small>Example: EURUSD</small>
Signal	Sell ▾ <small>Buy or Sell.</small>
Entry Price:	<input type="text" value="1.1280"/>
	<small>Entry Price.</small>
Take Profit Price:	<input type="text" value="1.1265"/>
	<small>Take Profit Price.</small>
Stop Loss Price:	<input type="text" value="1.1290"/>
	<small>Stop Loss Price.</small>
Trade Results	Results Not Available Yet ▾ <small>Trade Results.</small>

And click “Publish”.

Publish

Comment: In the “Trade Results” field select “Results Not Yet Available” (later you’ll update this field with the results of the trade - profit or loss).

To add the signals to a WordPress Post or Page, just add the following shortcode to it: [showsignals]

Pro Version:

In the “Pro” version (which you already have), you’ll find some additional features:

- You’ll be able to enter up to 3 Take Profit Levels (instead of only 1).
- You’ll be able to use an “Expired” status (“Trade Results”) to those signals where the “Open Price” was not triggered.
- You’ll be able to add comments to your signals (good to keep track of what it work and what not).

Final Comment:

If you want to sell signals, then you’d need to combine this plugin with a Membership plugin which will protect the pages where you show the signals + will allow you to handle multiple things (payments, access, user management etc). There are multiple solutions that can help and you can find some free options at WordPress.org (“Plugins” section).

That’s all!
